Tewantin—Noosa Heads

"QUEENSLAND'S Premier Fishing Resort" is the very much deserved name given to this beautiful watering place. Tourists of every class will find here an ideal holiday resort, and while it is not frequented by vast crowds, this very seclusion lends charm to the place, which is rapidly becoming one of the most popular resorts of Queensland.

Conveniently situated near one of the largest cities of Queensland, and yet isolated amid the forest, it presents a lovely picture of a town set among the blue of the ocean, the green of the forests, the grey of its shallow lakes, and the pearly white of its sand-banks and beaches.

Nowhere in Australia is such a combination of attractions to be found. There are its glorious sunny beaches equal to, if not so extensive as Florida, "The Playground of America." Its rocky scenery is as rugged and as fascinating as any part of the Cornish coast. Its shallow lakes, teeming with fish of all varieties, remind one of the Broads of Norfolk; and the dense, jungle-like scrubs, with their tropical beauty, abound with a beauty of flora and fauna which adds to the charming variety so beloved by tourists.

This delightful holiday resort on the Noosa River comprises three distinct places, each of which has its own particular attractions. They are Tewantin, Gympie Terrace, and Noosa Heads, and a first class road is now opened up to each of these places, and on to Coolum Beach.

Visitors arriving by train at Cooroy station are met by the various motor services.

One of the best-known landmarks of Tewantin is the Giant Fig Tree, which at all times of the year presents a most restful and inviting appearance. In the broad expanse of its shadow one can laze and enjoy the beautiful expanse of the lovely Noosa River running by. The age and history of this tree is a mystery. It was here long before the arrival of the first white man and was used by the blacks for some of their sacred rites.

To the fishing enthusiast the vast extent of its numerous lakes and river reaches, teeming with their wonderful variety of fish, is very enticing. There are four well-known lakes — Cootharaba, Cooroibah, Donella, and Weyba — and several others not so well known—Como, Cooloolah, and Figtree Lakes.

Lake Cootharaba is the largest, and abounds in game, and is the happy hunting ground of the man with a gun, while beyond this is the "Paradise of Shooters" known as the "Big Scrub," where turkey and wood pigeon are numerous.

The lakes are all more or less shallow, especially Donella, which is first overlooked by the Tewantin township. They are set among the forest and frequented by sight-seers. The first view of Lake Cootharaba holds one enthralled. As far as the eye can see stretches a broad expanse of water, merging in the far distance with a line of dark green almost invisible on the horizon. As the boat nears this, the foliage of deep green trees on the farther shore begins to take shape. Boreen Point is the chief place of interest, and is a point of rock with a small but pretty beach of sandy foreshore where swimming is a favourite pastime. Boat parties to this point are heartily welcomed by the Pedersen family, whose spacious fruit gardens, with their pleasant walks, are made available for the pleasure of visitors. Beautiful scenes of the lakes are here obtained.

Opposite Boreen Point, on the other side of the lake, is a small landing where visitors to Teewah Beach leave the boat to walk across the narrow isthmus to the open beach and the famous coloured sands. These cliffs of coloured sands are of the most remarkable formation, and a careful collector can gather as many as forty different colours. A variety of souvenirs of these sands may be purchased, or energetic visitors may collect these multi-coloured sands and make their own.

Lake Weyba is not far removed from the Coolum Beach on the south side, and is approached through the Weyba Creek, which branches from the Noosa River between Gympie Terrace and Noosa. This lake is the home of the Mullet, and many thousands of cases of these have been taken from its waters. It is prettily set in the surrounding bush, and its many reaches, like the feelers of an octopus, wind their sinuous ways amongst the surrounding hills.

Lake Cooroibah, commonly known as the "Little Lake," is shallow and full of fish. It is overlooked by Mt. Timbeerwah.

The Main Beach on the south side of Laguna Bay is as fine as any in Queensland, and one of the safest beaches in the world. It is very wide, though not long, and is a most picturesque sight when surfing is in full swing. It is backed by a very high hill which runs out to Noosa Headland. Surfing here is excellent. There is no undertow, even when the north-easterly winds make the bay very rough.

The North Beach provides an unbroken strip of sand, running right to Double Island Point, a distance of 45 miles. At low tide this beach is favourable for motoring, and cars are stationed on this side for special trips to Teewah Beach. This beach is backed by a huge hill of vari-coloured sands.

On the south side of the heads, Coolum Beach can be reached by a short cut through the bush. This beach extends for some twenty miles, and always presents a pretty picture for amateur photographers, and is fascinating to watch.

At the nearer end of the beach is the wonderful rock scenery of the various headlands, and the various places of special interest have queer names—Hell's Gates, Devil's Kitchen, Paradise Caves, etc.—and are only a short distance apart.

On Lake Weyba.

Devil's Kitchen is accessible only on a calm day and at low tide. On close investigation it is found to be a hole in the face of the cliff about 6 feet wide, 20 feet high. It tapers back from the entrance to a depth of 30 feet. In its roof is a small hole running back into the face of the cliff above. The waves rush into the cave with great roarings and force a spout of spray out of the small hole, making it look like a chimney giving off smoke. In rough weather it is a weird but fascinating sight.

Hell's Gates is a rocky gateway through which the rolling sea foams and splashes, hurling its billows in countless succession with a roar like thunder on the mighty walls of rock behind, and these in turn are hurled back again broken into a myriad fragments of snowy spray.

Paradise Cave is a huge hole battered out of the vast wall of rock by the never-resting sea. It has a sandy floor, and is quite accessible in calm weather at low tide.

The famous Boiling Pot with its seething waters, the Fairy's Pool with its multitude of nautical growths and clear blue depths, must be seen to be fully appreciated.

Visitors to Tewantin, Gympie Terrace, or Noosa Heads are well provided for. Public and private tennis courts are well patronised, while the swimming baths are crowded during the holidays.

Then Surfing, Shooting, Boating, Fishing, etc., can be indulged in as desired.

Gympie Terrace

IF Captain Cook could pull up the Noosa River to-day on a bright summer afternoon, he would find "natives" of a different colour, but almost as naked, busy catching fish for their evening meal or playfully disporting in the clear briny shallows that front the row of comfortable cottages to which the name of Gympie Terrace has been given, in honour of the pioneer "campers" who, forsaking the damp and darksome burrows of the old Gympie Gold Field, came here to enjoy the balance of their lease of life basking in the genial sunshine, pottering round in their little gardens, and keeping the "pan" in constant use frying the daily catch of Whiting, Flathead, Bream, Taylor, Cod, or Jew, as the results of their angling might happen to be. There are few seaside resorts where the visitor can step off his verandah, cross the road to the river, and get a "feed" at almost any time of the day, and Gympie Terrace is one of them.

For those who delight in a "day out," the open beach at the river mouth is but 20 minutes distant. Or there is Weyba Creek, with its many and winding channels and sand-banks, whereon the Whiting feed, and under whose sheltered edges lurk the voracious Flathead. In the deep mangrove margined channels are Cod for the angler who seeks "something big."

Lake Cootharaba.

At the head of Weyba Creek is Lake Weyba, a broad sheet of water some 3000 or 4000 acres in extent, on the shores of which beautiful little camping grounds abound, which in springtime and summer sparkle with wild flowers and birds in endless variety—a veritable paradise for those who love nature and who seek respite from the rush and din of city life.

A short drive from the Terrace across Weyba Creek puts the visitor on to the road to Coolum, where the miles and miles of sandy beach that check the westward march of the mighty Pacific rollers ends in the rocky beauties of Noosa Head, with its caves and dizzy cliffs.

The track to Coolum runs through picturesque belts of quaintly twisted timber, ever striving with the prevailing sou'-east winds, which, nearer to the beach, have conquered all vegetation save the hardy Bottle-Brush, Grass Tree, and Heather.

From these wind-swept ridges one can sweep the Pacific with his gaze, or feast his senses on the glorious panorama of the Coastal Range behind him—ranges from which no longer ascend the smoke signals of the blackfellow, but from which may be seen the denser signals that betray the presence of the settler and his work of destruction in "improving" his holding.

Places of Interest to Visitors

Walking Trips for Tourists

COOLUM (All Day Trip).—Leaving Noosa Heads, along the Main Beach the track leads through the bush, giving glimpses of the ocean here and there, and through fern valleys to the open Coolum Beach. Here the spot is ideal for lunch from the hampers, and, after a short rest, the homeward journey is commenced around the Headlands. The first point of interest is the beautiful outlook from the top, looking back on the wide and glorious Coolum Beach. From here are seen Moreton Island, Alexandra Headland, Old Woman Island, Mt. Coolum, and Mt. Ninderri. Then Paradise Caves are visited, and here can be obtained glorious views of the breaking surf. By the track leading down—at low tide—one can get a most unique view from the inside. Then the next place of interest is the Little Paradise Cave, followed by Captain Cook's Monument, Devil's Kitchen, Devil's Elbow, and the Blowhole. Then a short walk to Alexandra Bay, where afternoon tea is taken. The return walk through the shady bush is then enjoyed, and the party arrives back in ample time for a swim before dinner.

HELL'S GATES.—From Noosa Heads along the Main Beach the track winds through the bush, skirting the ocean until the arrival at Hell's Gates. Here a most glorious view is obtained of the breaking surf, while on the distant shore, across the bay, can be seen Double Island Point and Teewah Beach. Lunch is then prepared and enjoyed, and the party then visit the Fairy Pool. This is a most interesting pool. It nestles amongst bare, sea-washed rocks, and contains numerous beautiful varieties of coral and other nautical growths of varied hues, as well as tiny coloured fish. The water is of a unique clarity, and the rugged rocky environs lend a wonderful enchantment to the view.

From here the homeward journey is commenced around the various headlands to Granite Bay. This is a spot for afternoon tea.

Then a visit is paid to the famous Boiling Pot, where beautiful curtains of fleecy spray are hurled to enormous heights. Turtles are often seen swimming in the beautiful waters around these headlands, and large porpoises disport themselves in the crystal clear waters. From this point the visitors can easily reach their holiday home in time for a refreshing surf before dinner.

BOILING POT MOUNTAIN is a half-day walking trip from Noosa Head. The track leads directly inland to the highest point. Here in fine weather can be obtained glorious panoramic views of Glasshouse Mountains, Moreton Island, Double Island Point, Cootharaba Lakes, Tewantin, etc.

Boat Trips

THE LAKE TRIP (All Day).—Arrangements are made for parties, large or small, to visit the lakes. The journey up the river to Cooroibah and Cootharaba Lakes is very alluring. The boats wind their way through the picturesque upper reaches of the Noosa River, and land at Boreen Point. Here the party are heartily welcomed by the Pedersen family, whose spacious fruit gardens and walks are made available. Beautiful scenes of the lakes are here obtainable, and dinner is prepared under the mango and Jack-fruit trees. Souvenirs of coloured sands are obtained in various forms, and fruit purchased. The hospitality and kindness accorded to visitors to Boreen Point is well known. The boats call in on the return trip at Restdown for afternoon tea.

LAKE WEYBA TRIP (Half Day).—The launches leave the various places, after adding to their complement of passengers. After leaving the heads they enter the Weyba Creek, which is followed through its many pretty reaches to Lake Weyba. Fruit can be purchased at the various farms en route, then morning or afternoon tea is served from the hampers, and sport indulged in until the return journey.

TEEWAH BEACH (Full Day).—Teewah Beach is where the famous coloured sands are obtained. Spacious modern launches leave the various ferries and the heads as advertised. Proceeding up the river, passing Tewantin, Restdown, through Lake Coroibah, then into the river on to Cootharaba Lake, landing on the coastal side of Cootharaba Lake. Here dinner is partaken of, and a walk of 1¼ miles brings the party to the famous sands. Afternoon tea is served on the boat on the return journey.

Motor Trips

Motor trips are arranged for the benefit of visitors to Teewah Beach and Double Island Point. The trip to Double Island Point, along the northern foreshores, is full of excitement, which can be enjoyed by all. Parties are taken across to the north shore by boat, and transfer to the cars which travel on the firm sand of the North Shore Beach. Camping and fishing arrangements can be made by those who so desire, and these fishing grounds are unexcelled. Teewah Beach is not so far, and here the wonderful coloured sands are gathered as interesting souvenirs.

Other motor trips to Coolum Beach and any other places of interest can be arranged.

A glimpse through the Pandanus.

Cooroy

PLEASANTLY situated on each side of an undulating valley, through which the Great North Coast Railway passes, Cooroy, one of the most prosperous of bush towns, reflects the country of which it is the centre. Radiating therefrom, the roads run in all directions, through what was but recently virgin country, which consists largely of rich vine scrubs and valuable hardwood crests, wherein lay a vast wealth of timber unequalled for quality throughout the entire world.

A visitor to-day can hardly visualise that, much less than 20 years ago, the community was represented by a few timber-getters' camps, when he sees prosperous-looking farm houses with their cultivations and grass pastures on every hand; nor can he imagine the township itself, now represented by practically every phase of modern commercial life, as a virgin forest ridge with a hut and one or two tents located near the railway. Timber industries have played, and still are playing, a most important part in the development of the district. At one time in its history between 40 and 50 teams were actively engaged in hauling timber.

Dairying now takes precedence of the varied primary products. As against the time when the pioneers of the industry brought their small cream supplies to the rail on horseback to be sent to distant factories, a modern factory is now manufacturing little short of a million pounds of butter per annum. Development of the industry was so rapid that as early as 1910 a movement was made towards the erection of a factory, but it was not until the latter part of 1914 that an actual start with the building was made, and in April of 1915 the then Premier of Queensland, the Hon. Digby Denham, declared the factory open. A few days later, on the 19th, the first butter was manufactured. A reputation for a prime article was immediately attained; and that reputation has lost none of its glamour, for to-day Cooroy butter holds its own with the best in the Commonwealth.

Fruit growing is an expanding industry, and is becoming more established each year. Bananas were planted in the district about the year 1910 and became a very important industry. Banana land and plantations reached fabulous prices, and many returned soldiers were among the successful growers, but the area now under this tropical fruit has largely diminished, and citrus, pineapples, and strawberries have taken its place, the land proving very adaptable to these latter fruits. Small areas of other fruits are proving satisfactory, and, altogether, the fruit industry adds considerable wealth to the district, while large quantities of vegetables are also railed to southern markets. Sugar cane commands a great deal of attention from land owners, and each year is showing expansion in this direction. Experiments with sheep, both for wool and mutton, have proved successful, and this industry will undoubtedly in the near future become very advantageous to the community. Pig raising is well established, and is a most valuable adjunct to the dairying industry. Considerable attention is shown both to cattle and swine in the shape of purebred herds, the various breeds being well represented throughout.

Sport is well represented in most phases. A very fine showground lies adjacent to the township and compares more than favourably with the general run of similar grounds. A well defined raised track offers facility for all classes of races, while the oval is recognised as being par excellence. An extensive pavilion is also attached.

In the township itself every business, trade, and profession is well represented. Two commodious hotels provide ample accommodation for visitors. A first-class post office provides a continuous telephone service. A private hospital, well equipped, provides for the necessities of surgical and medical cases. Motorists have their needs attended to by proficient service stations and bowsers. In memory of fallen soldiers, a magnificent Memorial Hall has been erected by district residents, and a stone monument in the Memorial Park also testifies to the keen interest shown. Most of the Lodges and Associations find representation—a fine Masonic Temple is erected adjacent to the town. The C.W.A. is a very live organisation, which has rest rooms attached to the Memorial Hall. The literary needs are supplied by a well stocked library, and a printery, which produces a weekly newspaper and caters for all the printing needs of the district, is established. Amusement and entertainments are catered for by a weekly picture show, travelling theatrical and concert companies, as well as the local brass band and dramatic society. Churches are represented, the Church of England, Methodist, Presbyterian, and Roman Catholic, each sect having a substantial property. A Chamber of Commerce and several Farmers' Associations are active in protecting the welfare and advance of both town and district. The Education Department is represented by a first-class central school and six outlying schools. Climatic conditions are ideal, the average yearly rainfall being 60 inches. As a tourist resort Cooroy district presents unrivalled claims, though residents, up to the present time, make no particular effort to cater for tourist traffic. Radiating from the township some ten different roads penetrate in different directions to the boundaries of the district. Along each of these roads are points of vantage which present to the eye vistas of mountain, valley, lake and stream that would please the most fastidious lover of natural beauty. Another advantage is the proximity of the Noosa River and Pacific Ocean beaches, and a chain of lakes, all of which are within comfortable distances, and to which a main road of a total length of sixteen miles gives accessibility in all phases of weather. To those who delight in mountain climbing, bush exploring, and nature studies, an unending variety of attractions is available. Old Mount Cooroy, Tinbeerwah, and Black Mountain afford unrivalled facilities for climbing and exploring, while the ever-flowing creeks provide large quantities of fresh water fish.

As a place of settlement, Cooroy district offers many advantages. Motors provide transport services along each road on most days of the week. Land is reasonable in price, and taxes and rates are by no means excessive for the services renderd.
